We Sell About 350 Tons of Onions a Week

Detail Introduction :

The German company Hans A. Wüst GmbH, which belongs to the Gemüsering Stuttgart group, was for 1978 by the former director of the same name at the Mannheim wholesale market. The company pro around 60,000 tons of potatoes and 20,000 tons of onions per year in its handling plants. Buyer and s Jochen Kandziora tell us about the current range of onions from Hans A. Wüst GmbH.

"Usually we start marketing our onions in the month of June. The season lasts until the end of March, which we buy onions from Lower Saxony, the Netherlands, the Lower Rhine, and Bavaria. The supply Bavaria is limited this year, mainly because they have quality problems. Therefore, we will mainly reconions from Lower Saxony," says Kandziora. Starting in the middle/end of April, the company will buy from New Zealand and South Africa, which will be offered until June, followed by onions from the Pal "We receive around 350 tonnes a week. Our main customer is the retail sector. We hardly supply who markets, as farmers now sell their produce directly to supply markets like Cologne or Düsseldorf. The little room left for intermediaries in this sales channel," says Kandziora.

The onion expert tells us that, compared to previous years, demand has increased by around 10% th also thanks to higher household consumption. "Our prices have not gone up. We are still at 18-22 eu 100 kg. Lower Saxony has increased its volumes and the Netherlands is selling a lot of batches in nor Germany," says Kandziora. In April, the company switches to imported products, so storage products longer find buyers. "That makes some in the onion market quite nervous."
